BAJALIA
11455 International Blvd
Lynchburg, Virginia, 23902

Bajalia Trading Company's goal is to alleviate poverty and empower low-income people through trade, training and other forms of community development as they work to improve their lives, by:

Mission

- *Providing collaboration between designers and artisans to improve the quality of products and to make them more marketable in the US and Europe.
- *Providing equipment when necessary to establish the artisans' ability to support their families by producing these products, including sewing machines, weaving looms, pottery wheels, etc.
- *Assisting with purchase of raw materials, in bulk, for handicraft production where necessary.
- *Marketing products in art fairs, sales, and online to provide a steady income to the artisans and the entrepreneurs working in the area.
- *Ensuring fair prices and workplaces free of exploitation of the artisans or their environment.
- *Expanding international understanding on the individual level by helping consumers to understand the effect of their purchasing power in the lives of the artisans.
- *Partnering with local communities and global philanthropy organizations to maximize the effectiveness of our work, and partnering with child development organizations dedicated to providing long-term, sustainable education to children at risk worldwide.
- *Using the products and stories of the artisans to encourage respect, and financial support for the artisans relative to these goals.

Products

Our diverse product line includes authentic, handmade products from India, Morocco, Africa, Afghanistan and other war-torn countries. These products include:

- women's accessories
- scarves
- wall art
- hand made baskets
- hand made paper
- stationary products
- folk art, etc.

Our ethnic, trend, jewelry, and scarves are made from silver, brass and sterling metalwork and handwork. Our ethical influenced kids' footwear supports fair trade and ethical labor. Fashion and home designers are welcome to collaborate with us.

Fair Trade

Bajalia Trading Company works within the guidelines for fair trade. This means we are committed to providing fair wages and good employment opportunities for our producers in developing nations and entrepreneurs worldwide. We help educate consumers about the value of purchasing products which support living wages and non-exploitive working conditions in the developing world.

did ya know?

Beetles account for one quarter of all known species of plants and animals. There are more kinds of beetles than all plants.

Beetles are common pests that can be found in a variety of locations. They can be separated into various groups according to their characteristics. Soldier beetles can often be found in homes and cannot hurt humans. There are 12,000 different kinds of ground beetles in the United States. These beetles like to live outside and dine on other insects. Aquatic beetles make their homes around water sources. These beetles have wings and can fly but have trouble landing and walking, as their bodies are better adapted to a watery home.

the global SEX TRADE

The pop music blares from the speakers situated on the steamy and seedy Patpong Road. "One night in Bangkok and the world's your oyster."

"Oh, that is so '90s," says Mylee, a pretty 26-year-old Thai prostitute from the city of Chiang Rai in Northern Thailand. Mylee has perfect teeth, long, flowing jet-black hair and a graceful manner that belies her social status. She once studied to become a veterinarian at a Thai university, but the 1997 Asian financial meltdown forced her family into bankruptcy and destitution.

For Mylee, life — as it is for so many Thai women — is anything but a fairytale, yet her lot is better than many of the women and children caught in the no-man's-land of Southeast Asia's human-flesh trade. It is a trade that includes not only sex, but pedophilia, human slavery and even organ harvesting.

"It's a terrible situation," Mylee told WorldNetDaily. "It seems at times as though there isn't a single decent man left in the world. I thought that men were supposed to protect women and children, not exploit them. Even the men in the white hats sometimes are hiding black hats and even blacker hearts underneath."

Mylee's point is underscored by the fact that a Thai police lieutenant colonel from Lumpini recently was charged with the repeated rape of a 12-year-old girl. The officer faces 20 years in jail. In response to increased crimes against children, Thailand's Cabinet recently endorsed a plan to recognize international laws established by the Hague convention on child abduction, child-related crime and adoption.

"People are bought and sold — children, too," Mylee said over a meal.

"Phom di-chan kin-jeh," she said sheepishly. "I am a vegetarian." Mylee spoke while sitting down for a plate of "yam wan wan," a kind of noodle salad.

"Even the elephants don't have a place to go. They are Thailand's national symbol, and we don't have a game reserve for them. I love animals," she added.

Mylee doesn't earn a great sum of money for her services, but what she does manage to save helps her family back in Chiang Rai.

"I have three little sisters, and if it weren't for this, they wouldn't eat. I worry about AIDS. But you know, the sex trade is ancient. It goes back to the beginnings of human history. I am but one brick in that long, unbroken wall of female exploitation and misery."
